GAZETTE-BERGSTEIN.

The Gazette as usual hedges on its attack on Dr. Bergstein and the readers of the JOURNAL need not be surprised within a few days to find the Gazette complimenting the doctor on his able management. The Gazette's language in reference to the Ryland contract was quoted and there is little doubt but what it was intended to convey the idea to the general public that Dr. Bergstein had grossly exceeded his authority in using funds for furnishing the annex the building of which only had previously been contracted for, but as long as the Gazette now says that it did not mean what it said, but "meant ready for occupancy" this slight misrepresentation and error of judgment on the part of the Gazette's editor will be overlooked. In regard to the invitations to visit the Asylum, it matters but little whether Governor Sadler as one of the Board of Commissioners invited the editor, or the invitation was extended by the whole board, or whether Dr. Bergstein sent him a perfumed envelope with the invitation engrossed on pink paper. He was invited to examine into the various irregularities charged by him and he did not accept.

The Gazette editor also endeavors to sidetrack the question of veracity so that it will appear as being between the doctor and the editor of the Elko Independent, but this is so remote that it would take a number of Gazette editorials to establish any connection between those two gentlemen in relation to the question on that point.

In digesting the Gazette's comments on the doctor's statement, the same might be said in reference to the so-called misstatements, the items pertaining to chairs, bedsteads, bookcases, the hide transaction, the stabling of his horse or the magnificent sum of $3 expended for wood for his town office.

In summing up the case, as a lawyer would say, the Gazette has cried "wolf" when there was none about and the only sweet morsel it has left is the "boycott" which in a measure there is some reason for complaint, but even the less said about this in a community of Reno's size, the better for all parties concerned.

MINT EXAMINERS

Mr. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury, has appointed B. F. Butler, Joseph Firebaugh and W. A. Lamson, Commissioners to make the annual examination of the United States mints at Carson, Nev., and San Francisco, Cal. Mr. Butler is an officer of the Mint Bureau, Mr. Lamson lives in Chicago, and Mr. Firebaugh lives in the southern part of Illinois.

One of the three commissioners, presumably knows something about mint affairs, the others, it is assumed, do not, as they are private citizens. That, however, does not seem to make any difference. The Carson Mint has been examined annually since it was established, and three years ago when the present incumbents took office, the examiners sent here by the Government gave the retiring officers a clearance card and reported everything straight.

The new officers discovered that their predecessors had been systematically robbing the Government for years, and that crookedness had been the rule in the mint under the preceding administration. For making this discovery the new officials were denounced by the gold press of the State, and a combined and determined effort was made to make it appear that the new officers were thieves and were responsible for the $75,000 stolen from the mint.

With all the circumstances connected with the mint steal fresh in the minds of the people, it will look somewhat farcical to many, to have two of the three commissioners appointed to examine the mints wholly unacquainted with the technicalities of assaying and refining gold and silver bullion and unable to determine or distinguish the difference between a bar of silver and a bar of gold. But Mr. Gage has friends who declaimed against free coinage in the last campaign and declared that a standard dollar which is a legal tender for all debts, would be worth only 53 cents if Bryan was elected, and these friends must be rewarded, whatever may be the consequences to the Government.

SOLDIERS, NOT SERVANTS

Five soldiers, enlisted men, have been sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $10 each at Fort Crook, near Omaha, for mutiny. The men were detailed to proceed to the house of the Company Commander and clean it from top to bottom. The men performed the work under protest, as they claimed that they did not enlist to do menial service, and when the work was completed, requested the privilege of laying their grievances before the Commander of the Post. This privilege was refused by the Company Commander, who ordered the men to the guard house, and had them tried and sentenced as stated.

Friends of the imprisoned men engaged the services of a lawyer, who propose to have the question, whether enlisted men can be compelled to act as servants of officers, settled in the courts. The men assert that they did not enlist for the purpose of cleaning the houses of officers, and that they are soldiers and not servants.

The United States Courts will now have to decide whether the soldiers have the right idea of their duties, and whether it is a part of their duty to clean the houses of officers. A difference of opinion on this question has been the cause of much friction between officers and enlisted men for many years, and, if this case is prosecuted, it will now probably be settled by the courts.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Hoffman inquest dragged along its weary course yesterday at San Francisco without any definite results. Chief Lees now believes that the book-keeper Fiegel is innocent and says he will see him through his present difficulty. Thomas Turnbull of Fruitvale and Miss Lillian Cobb, a stenographer, both testified that they had seen Hoffman at the door of his office at 6:15 in the evening. This disposes of the theory that Fiegel was the murderer.

The Republican State Convention will meet at Toledo to-day. Many delegates are on the ground. There is no opposition to the endorsement of Hanna for Senator or Bushnell for Governor.

The Senate passed over the wool schedule yesterday in the tariff bill and took up the paper schedule, approving it in a short time. A number of other schedules were considered and the free list was reached at 2 o'clock.

"Jumbo," the famous steer that had reached the enormous weight of 5,000 pounds, was killed at Wichita, Kan., yesterday. His owner decided to kill him and have his hide mounted while yet in good condition.

Hon. Paul Sorg of Middletown, Ohio, a candidate for Governor, declares himself for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. He says the political fight this year should be made on this issue alone.

The Pleasanton Hotel at Fresno was set on fire three times Sunday. Walter Furnish is charged with the crime. He belongs to one of Fresno's most prominent families.

To Receive Bryan.

The Democratic County Central Committee met last evening at the office of H. A. Walto to consider ways and means for the proper reception of William Jennings Bryan on the evening of July 2, 1897, as he passes through Reno enroute to California.

After some discussion as to a method of procedure it was decided to appoint committees on arrangements and reception, the members of which to be chosen from the Democratic and Silver parties.

The appointment of the two committees then followed and consist of the following gentlemen:

On Reception—Hon. J. B. Ryan, Virginia; Hon. J. H. Dennis and E. D. Kelley, Carson; W. O. H. Martin, Chas. Gilling, Hon. C. C. Powning, Hon. A. E. Cheney, R. S. Osburn, Reno, and C. R. Carter, Verdi.

On Arrangements—C. H. Stoddard, R. C. Moore, E. R. Dodge, W. H. McInnis and R. Ryland.

The committees are earnestly requested to meet early and act promptly that the champion of the people may be accorded a rousing reception on his arrival at Reno.

His Sixty-fourth Anniversary.

T. K. Hymers had a birthday Sunday, but did not discover the fact until he went home to dinner and found that some of his favorite dishes had been prepared and set before him. He inquired the reason why this particular day should be celebrated and his daughter told him that it was the 64th anniversary of his birth. Tom commenced to figure up, but finally decided it would take him too long and fell to with a will to enjoy the good things before him. Tom is getting on the shady side of life, but has not changed much in the last thirty years. What little hair he has doesn't have time to become grey, for individually there are so few of them that it keeps them busy to make a representation. He is as lively as of old and only gets mad when somebody kicks at the roads. He is good for a quarter of a century yet, and will in all likelihood, still hold the Commissionership of Washoe county.

NAVAL MISHAPS.

We Make Too Much Fuss and Sensation
Over Trifles.

We have a good navy, and we do not appreciate it. As a matter of fact, casualties to our new armorclads and cruisers have not been particularly frequent when their size and their number are considered. In this country every trivial mischance is caught up and exploited by the sensational newspapers, but nothing is said of similar accidents in foreign navies. During the destruction of Admiral Kimberly's fleet by the San Juan hurricane in 1889, which no skill or foresight could have prevented, our naval service for many years has been remarkably free from really serious disasters.

There is nothing in our records to compare with the capsizing of the British frigate Captain with half a thousand men in 1870, or the fatal collision of the British ironclads Vanguard and Iron Duke in 1875, or that of the German ironclad Kaiser Wilhelm and Grosser Kurfurst the year following, when 300 men perished, or the loss of the British training ship Eurydice and Atlanta in 1879 and 1880 with 600 officers, sailors and apprentice boys, or the sinking of the British flag ship Victoria, with Admiral Tryon, 22 officers and 880 sailors, by collision with the Campden in June 22, 1893, in the Mediterranean, or the wreck of the Spanish cruiser Reina Regente, on March 10, 1893, with 430 officers and seamen.

The list of minor accidents to foreign naval vessels in the past few years would be too long to enumerate. But the standing of the British ironclads Victoria and Anson, the flagship Amphion and the cruiser Sultan were far more serious affairs than any such accidents which have befallen to any of our own vessels within this period. We have had our fair share of troubles, perhaps, but no more than that.—Boston Journal.

Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail, and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use, and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. A City Praised For Its Good Manners and Harmonious Surroundings.
If I wished to teach an awkward child, youth or girl good manners by example, I should send him or her to Florence, says a writer to Truth (London). There may be ill-mannered persons there, but I never saw one. Poor people behave with the suave dignity which is used in England to stamp the lady or gentleman. Most persons are brainy, but cleverness is not eager to shine. It is very subdued and more oily than corrosive. The charm of Florence steals on one like the wit of its clever inhabitants. The senses are soothed in all directions by harmonious manners and objects. Architects understood chi-aroscuro not less than the great painters and sculptors. One never wearies of the streets and public buildings. Their aspects constantly and strongly vary, according to the course of the sun. Lights and shades at 10 in the forenoon are wholly different from what they will be at 4 in the afternoon. The Florentine women have interesting though not beautiful faces. But one has only to walk into the market to see country girls who would have done for models for Raphael's Virgin mothers. One is struck in the galleries with the nice judgment with which the pictures are hung. What more lofty in sentiment than the tomb of Lorenzo de' Medici? Lofliness is an attribute of Florentine architecture, palatial or domestic. The floors of private houses might pass in England for portals. One feels them to be great facts in their way.
Talking of harmonious things reminds me of the Boboli gardens. Is there a spot in England, the land of stately and lovely seats, that at all approaches them? In situation and tranquility, generous loveliness I can only think of one—the Duke of Northumberland's terraced gardens at his place in Surrey. The Boboli Eden, where the Prince and Princess of Naples still court seclusion, has the advantage over the Surrey paradise of being under a revealing sky. Every shade of greenery, every floral hue, is well brought out. One sees the faultless texture of statues and fountains mellowed by time. In so strong a light a well ordered design is required, and one has it. The marbles are the climax. They are to the horticultural beauties as brilliant to the lace and satin of a fine woman's dress.
Florence is not what it was in the grand fiscal days. Still, it retains the air of a capital with a long and illustrious history. The ladies' dresses are only provincial when measured by the last standard, to which Italian women above the peasant class generally submit—more the pity. Paris fashions only suit Frenchwomen, unless applied to French hairdresses and femmes de chambre. An English or a German face under a Paris hat or bonnet is at a decided disadvantage if the hair has not been first dressed by a French and capillaire. He places the hat, through the medium of the hair, in harmonious relation with the face. I fancy these French coiffures are not much employed by Italian ladies.
Precious Meals.
Almost any dish which had to recommend itself to the senses, indigestibility, and, to our way of thinking, nastiness, was sure to take with the Roman epicure. And if he were unable to make it costly any other way he would add powdered precious stones or gold dust. Nero dined on one occasion from a peacock which was sprinkled with diamond dust, and specimens of that bird dressed with gold or with crushed pearls were by no means a rarity at the triclinia of the moneyed Romans. A dish of parrots' tongues was a great delicacy. But a dish of parrots' tongues which had been capable, when in their proper place, of framing words, was of almost incalculable value, which increased in a direct ratio with the vocabularies of the defunct parrots.
Another bird for which the Roman epicure was in the habit of paying fabulous prices was the phoenix, which is believed to have been the paragon. It had its home in the most northerly parts of Scotland and Norway, and as this made it hard to get at the Romans appreciated it all the more and put it in the same rank with ostriches, turkeys and peacocks. The tongues of these birds were specially prepared, together with the brains, and took the place which a hors d'oeuvre would now take.—New York Post.
Her Point of View.
They were discussing the construction of a new gown.
"From a hygienic point of view and merely as a matter of health," suggested the cynic, "I think it should be made."
The laughing beauty stopped her by a gesture.
"Hygienic point of view!" she exclaimed. "Matter of health! What has that to do with it? When I want health, I will go to a doctor. When I want style, I come to you. We will now eliminate all absurdities and discuss this problem from a common sense standpoint. Will it be shapely and becoming?" —Ph. Times.
Hot Milk as Nutrient.
If any one doubts the nourishing properties of milk, let a test be made of the following preparation of it: When very weary or weak from exhaustion, heat some milk to the scalding point, until a thin skin begins to wrinkle upon the surface, and then drink it as hot as possible. It need be almost instantly and restores the exhausted vitality to a surprising extent as soon as it is taken. It is more nutritious than any of the food articles commonly expected or that are sold as such.

The Struggling Young Author.
"I have always read, and always with interest," said the struggling young author, "what literary men had to say concerning their habits of work. In many cases productivity appears to depend upon mood—sometimes a man can write and sometimes he can't. A man feeling in condition can do any sort of work, no doubt, better than when he is out of condition, but a man may be mistaken in himself. I find that it is a good thing to make a beginning."
"Often the mere effort of making a beginning is enough to dispel clouds that seemed to be heavy, but which are really only mere fumes, and gas tunnel to concentration is enough to bring to the surface that you had thought were lying far from home, but were really looking about right near, waiting to be called."—New York Sun.
A Couplehood.
"The man who brought this in," remarked the editor's assistant as he unrolled half a yard of manuscript, "told me confidentially that he needed the money for it."
"Yes," was the melancholy answer, "it's a strange fact that the longest poems seem almost invariably to be written by the shortest poets."—Washington Star.
